

I am in favor of all these additional frequency allocations for amateur radio operations, and in particular the proposed 60 meter band. As a shared band, I think it would be appropriate for power output to be limited, as on the 30 meter band. 200 watts is more than adequate for domestic communication. Having a segment of the band reserved for non-voice communication is also appropriate, I believe.

Thomas Cooper W1EAT